Present-Day Country of African Origin: Nigeria

As president and co-founder of African Ancestry, Gina Paige is part of a trailblazing team of two that pioneered a new way of tracing ancestral origins by geographically assessing African lineages to present-day countries of origin. Under Paige's leadership, dedication and passion, African Ancestry has grown to be the nation's leading, African-American owned ancestry-tracing company, igniting global interest and dialogue and unprecedented focus on African ancestry tracing since its inception five years ago.

Prior to creating African Ancestry, Paige was the founder and president of GPG Strategic Resources, a boutique New York consulting firm specializing in strategy development, new product development and project management. With her signature entrepreneurial approach, some of the nation's leading blue-chip companies benefited from her management experience and improved profitability. The list of firms she has contributed her considerable talents includes Fortune 200 companies such as Sara Lee (from which she received two corporate distinctions) and Colgate-Palmolive.

Paige holds a degree in Economics from Stanford University and an MBA from the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business.

About African Ancestry

Founded in 2003 on years of research, African Ancestry, Inc., is an ancestry tracing company that pioneered African lineage matching in the United States utilizing its proprietary DNA-database of more than 25,000 African DNA lineages to more accurately assess present-day country of origin for people of African descent. Since its inception, African Ancestry's lineage reveals have impacted the lives of more than 100,000 people of African descent in the U.S. African-American-owned and operated, African Ancestry is headquartered in Washington, DC.
